ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY

Historical Foundation and Institutional Evolution Ningxia Medical University is one of China's established public medical institutions, founded in 1958 in Yinchuan, the capital city of Ningxia Hui Autonomous Region. Originally established as Ningxia Medical College, the institution underwent a significant transformation in 2008 when it achieved university status, though this evolution did not diminish its academic standing or historical reputation. For nearly seven decades, the university has developed from a regional medical college into a comprehensive higher learning institution recognized internationally for medical education. Campus Infrastructure and Academic Scale The university occupies an extensive campus covering approximately 833,000...
